Editorial

What a funny little letter the V is, it haint got no bottom, almost it haint got no top, almost, it's sides go to nothing, almost But for all that-right now, Seems like it's the letter that's wanted most."

For the past some time we have been reading, and seeing most everywhere, a large letter "V", and something about it. We are told it is a symbol for Victory in this savagery of War that is going on between people of most all nations.

"Victory"! What does it mean? That England should have the victory over Germany? Russia, victory over Germany? England victory over Italy? What a mess! Yet just a few years ago there was friendliness, co-operation and now—these different European countries are clawing like mad men and wild animals at each other's throats to see which can kill the most etc. Can it be that, that is what is meant by Victory?

A great annual event has just come to a close among the Jewish people—that of the celebration of the atonement, when each faithful sought forgiveness of any wrong done his fellowman of his faith and started a new year with a clean slate and being "At-one-ment" with his God and fellowman.

Similar occasions occur in the Christian faith and after those cleansing periods, we again enter the world at large to conduct business, etc., but, from the sublime, the first step brings us face to face with the most ungodly, most brutal actions of man—war! Its influence upon our minds, is so that we call, high minded, noble men and women names (Isn't that childish!) We think this, that and the other thing, until all the, people of God are all confused.

He who made all races and people of one blood, who brought love and peace into the world, is even scorned and we listen as it were to the voice of Satan—when a handful of men thru out the world decree a war should be and so the minds, thoughts efforts and years are given over to create a hate, for without hate no one can war and there we have it again.

So why cannot "V" symbolize Victory over selfishness, covetousness, love for money, jealousy, race hatred, anger, ignorance, false propaganda, egotisticalness, arrantness, untruthfulness, in any form, want, hunger and sickness.

Then will wars cease, and because we will know all people as our brothers, because created by the same Creative Spirit, we will love and having no need for the swords then they will be made into plow shares and plenty and peace shall reign and then we will enjoy the truly "Atonement".

Yes, "V" is for the kind of Victory the only one that can possibly last.

Zion Lutheran Church In Tinley Park 60 Years Old

The Zion Lutheran congregation will celebrate their 60th anniversary with special festive services on Sunday, October 19th. At the German service at 8:30 a. m., Rev. Hugo A. Lutz of Gary, Indiana will bring the anniversary message.

At 11 o'clock the English service will take place with Rev. Theo. Albert of Ashkum, Illinois preaching the anniversary sermon.

In the afternoon at three o'clock there will be a special service with Dr. M. P. F. Doermann, President of the Illinois District delivering the sermon. There will be special addresses given by Rev. C. H. Busse, Rev. J. Detjen and Rev. C. H. Rembold all of Chicago.

There will be special music and a song service by the choir. The beginning of Zion Church dates back to 1872 or 1873, when neighboring pastors conducted services in that little building, which even to this day serves as a school house. Pastor Deichmann had charge of the first congregation until 1881, when Pastor Wetzel became his successor. The organization of Zion took place in the same year. The following year Mr. Henry Vogt erected a home for the pastor and his family, which, a few years later was purchased by the congregation to serve as a parsonage. When Pastor Wetzel resigned, Pastor A. C. Krebs was called. He took charge in October 1882 and for 11 years labored successfully.

In the beginning of 1884 the congregation began planning a new edifice. The corner stone was laid in May of the same year and the dedication of the church took place in October.

When Pastor Krebs accepted a call to Shumway, Illinois, Pastor A. Biedermann was called. He left after five years of successful work. Pastor Fandrey, and Pastor Mack supplied the pulpit of Zion church until Pastor E. Lehmann came. When three years later he accepted a call to Fontanelle, Iowa, Pastor Albert Buddenhagen was called. Under his leadership a good many things were accomplished. The old parsonage was remodelled and enlarged; the interior of the church re-decorated; a new altar, a new pipe organ purchased; eleven new art glass windows installed and a new parsonage built.

Zion church today numbers 337 communicant members, souls 400.

The church council consists of the following:

Deacons—William Keuch, Charles Koehler and Edward Mohr. Trustees—Edward Henke, George Kott and Wm. Koehler.

Treasurer—Harry Mager. Secretary—John C. Funk.

In the 60 years of Zion's existence the following official ministerial acts were performed: weddings 160; baptisms, 543; confirmation, 533; funerals, 294; Lord's Supper was administered to 16,446.

The Zion Church of Tinley Park is affiliated with the American Lutheran Church.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for October 5

GOD OUR HEAVENLY FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1:26-28; Matthew 6:24-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.—Matthew 6:9.

Without God man has no hope in this world. This is the teaching of Scripture, which is confirmed by experience and admitted by the philosophies of men. "Having no hope and without God in the world," says Paul (Eph. 2:12), and every godless philosophy paints the same dark picture. Says one, "It cannot be doubted that the theistic belief is a comfort to those that hold it and that the loss of it is a very painful loss. We have seen the spring sun shine out of an empty heaven to light up a soulless earth; we have felt with utter loneliness that the Great Companion is dead" (Clifford).

That desolate and despairing conclusion need not be the lot of any man, for we have in God's own Word a clear revelation of Himself as our Creator and our loving Father. Why not accept it?

I. God Our Creator (Gen. 1:26-28). Both of our Scripture passages tell us much about man, but in doing so they reveal God.

1. How He Made Man (vv. 26, 27). "God created man in his own image" (v. 27). This does not refer to any physical likeness, although it is abundantly evident that man's body is far above the animal level and perfectly adapted to be the dwelling place of the soul and the instrument of its activity in a physical world. Even the Son of God took upon Himself the body of a man and, in its glorified state, still bears that body in heaven. This means that man's body is worthy of honor and considerate care and use.

The real image of God in man is a moral and spiritual likeness. Man is a moral being, knowing the difference between right and wrong. He has all the characteristics of personality, self-consciousness, intelligence, feeling and will. That image has been marred and defaced by sin, but it is still there. Even in the lowest man or woman it is capable of being reached and transformed by the grace of God.

2. How He Blessed Man (v. 28). He gave man "a help meet for him" (Gen. 2:18); that is, a completely suitable companion and helper. He gave him dominion over the entire earth, and his restless, pioneering spirit still presses toward the complete realization of that promise. He provided for every need of man, not only physical and social, but also spiritual, for we read that He walked with him "in the cool of the day" (Gen. 3:8), until man by his own sin broke that fellowship. God's love toward His creation is shown by His provision for man's complete joy and full usefulness.

II. God Our Heavenly Father (Matt. 6:24-33).

Two things harass the mind and heart of man—anxiety for today and fear for tomorrow. He must have what he and his family needs for today, and it is a constant struggle for most men to meet that need. Then, as though that were not enough, there is always the tomorrow's new and possibly greater needs. Even those who have all they need today live in dread (and well they may if they do not trust God) that tomorrow or next week or next year they too may be in need. Our text meets both problems, for it tells us

1. Why We Need Not Be Anxious Today (vv. 24-31). The answer is simple—look at the birds. They cannot work, they are not even able to pray, yet God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers. Even a king cannot dress in such beauty—God provided it for them. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

No bird ever worried because it did not have a meal laid by for tomorrow, and no flower has fretted itself lest its blossom failed to come forth in its accustomed beauty. Why should we be anxious?

Intelligent forethought is good and proper, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God. He is ready and able to meet our daily need.

2. Why We Need Not Fear Tomorrow (vv. 32, 33). "Your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need" (v. 32). Does not that settle the whole future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Tomorrow with its joys and sorrows is not yet here, and when it does come God will be here as a loving Father to graciously provide for every moment of it.

What then shall we do? Verse 33 tells us, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Give God first place in your life and He will see that all "these things" are added. Simple, isn't it? and blessedly true. Let's trust Him!

Naturally Human

A man is simple when his chief care is the wish to be what he ought to be, that is honestly and naturally human.—Charles Wagner.

Coal Was Used in the Bronze Age

The popular legend is that coal was discovered by Joseph of Arimathea who, near Glastonbury in A. D. 67, found a black lump and took it to the monastery where it was thought to be a stone and thrown on the fire. It became known as "seacoals," and was first used generally as fuel in 1228. It is now established that coal was used in Great Britain much earlier. Sir Cyril Fox, director of the National Museum of Wales, while excavating in the neighborhood of Bridgton, England, came across two cairns, both of the Bronze age. One had buried in it two adults and a child, and fragments of coal found with each set of remains show that coal was used in these cremation burials. It was also established that the burials took place about 1600 B. C.

An Important Statement About Rubber in National Defense

AND WHAT YOU AS A CAR OWNER AND A LOYAL AMERICAN CAN DO ABOUT IT

Among the strategic raw materials so vital to national defense, rubber is one of the most indispensable.

Airplanes, scout cars, tanks and trucks — as well as thousands of vehicles necessary for transportation in defense industries — require tires, tubes, and hundreds of other products made from rubber.

And while no other nation in the world has such vast natural resources as the United States, all of our rubber must be imported across thousands of miles of ocean.

Map showing routes that rubber travels to the U. S.

With world conditions as they are today, we must face the growing possibility that this country may be cut off from its principal sources of rubber supply.

Realizing the dangers of a single source of supply, Harvey S. Firestone began years ago the development of a huge million-acre tract of land in Liberia for growing rubber. Today, an ever-increasing amount of highest-quality rubber is being shipped to Firestone from these plantations.

At present, this country has on hand or in transit only enough crude rubber and finished products to last 13 months at present rate of consumption.

Comparison of rubber supply on hand and amount needed for one year at present rate of consumption.

Every month part of the rubber imported is used by the government to build up a reserve. The remainder is allotted to the rubber companies who must FIRST manufacture products needed for defense. They then use the rest to make the thousands of rubber products needed by automobile and other manufacturers and by the public.

New Firestone synthetic rubber factory

Fully aware of these serious conditions, Firestone has taken many steps to conserve and increase America's supply of rubber. In cooperation with the government, Firestone is now building another factory for the manufacture of synthetic rubber. This will greatly increase present capacity.

As a further step in conserving rubber, Firestone scientists and engineers recently developed the new wear-resisting Vitamic rubber compound, which enables car owners to get much greater mileage from their tires and thus save more rubber.

HOW EVERY CAR OWNER CAN HELP CONSERVE RUBBER

Today's conditions stand as a challenge to the loyalty and patriotism of American motorists. Here are a few common-sense rules of tire care which will save millions of pounds of rubber annually for your country — and save money for you.

UNDERINFLATED TIRES WASTE RUBBER

Look at this chart — if a tire with 30 pounds of recommended air pressure is run at 25 pounds, 32% of normal mileage is sacrificed! Save money and save rubber by having your tires checked every week.

SPEED WASTES RUBBER

Chart shows excessive speed is the greatest thief of tire mileage. An increase in speed of 50% may mean a 50% increase in the cost of operating your car.

QUICK STARTS AND SUDDEN STOPS ARE COSTLY

In quick getaways, wheels spin against the pavement, wasting rubber. Sudden stops cause your wheels to slide. Save rubber by starting and stopping slowly.

CHECK WHEEL ALIGNMENT AND HAVE BRAKES BALANCED

A wheel only 1/2-inch out of line is dragged sideways 87 feet per mile, scraping off tread rubber. Unbalanced brakes are equally wasteful of tire mileage. Save rubber by having your wheel alignment and brakes checked regularly.

CHANGE TIRES FROM WHEEL TO WHEEL EVERY 5,000 MILES

The diagram at the right shows how the tires on your car should be changed from one wheel to another every 5,000 miles. This plan of inter-changing tires saves rubber by eliminating uneven tire wear.

WHEN YOU NEED NEW TIRES . . . IT'S ALWAYS GOOD JUDGMENT TO BUY THE BEST

One of the most effective ways to save rubber — and at the same time save money and save precious human lives — is to equip your present tires with Firestone Life Protectors, the new-type tubes that out-wear three sets of ordinary tubes.

With Firestone Life Protectors on your car you can drive your present tires safely thousands of extra miles without fear of blowouts, because these tubes make a blowout as harmless as a slow leak.

And after your present tires are worn out, replace them with the safest, longest-wearing tires that money can buy — the new Safer-Sured Firestone Deluxe Champion Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

Hitler-Mussolini Ignore Roosevelt World Peace Plea

President Sounds Alarm as Aggressor Nations Arm For Conflict.

By special arrangement with Collier's Weekly and Western Newspaper Union this newspaper presents in condensed form, the fourth in a series of articles by President Roosevelt currently appearing in that magazine. The articles are taken from the President's newly written introductions to forthcoming volumes of his state papers.

THE FIGHT GOES ON—IV 'War and Neutrality' By Franklin D. Roosevelt

(Copyright, 1941, by Franklin D. Roosevelt and by the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. Reproduction in whole or in part is forbidden.)

IN 1939 there started another general war, for which Germany had been preparing since 1933, and for which Italy and Japan had been preparing for years before. It is a war which had been definitely and unmistakably foreseeable since 1936, when the Nazis marched into the Rhineland.

I think that historians will record the fact, that, ever since 1933, the United States and its government had persistently and actively sought to prevent this conflict, and to preserve peace in the world. This search for peace was the very keystone of our entire foreign policy. It was dictated not only by a natural humanitarian desire to prevent the bloodshed and horrors of war, but also by a realistic appreciation that any European war would be a definite danger to our own peace and security, and to the welfare of the entire Western hemisphere.

In other ways, too, the government of the United States actively sought to preserve the peace of the world. The two great obstacles to world peace in modern times have always been: first, the piling up of armaments, particularly weapons of offense; and, second, the erection of tariff barriers to prevent reciprocal trade and commerce between nations.

With respect to disarmament, this administration took the lead as

For two years, from October in 1937 to September in 1941, President Roosevelt broadcast repeated warnings that America could not escape European internal troubles and pleaded through state notes to Hitler and Mussolini, for a world peace conference. The dictators scorned a direct reply. Hitler (right) views a part of his mighty air armada in 1940, which was even then blasting Old World cities in his effort to conquer more land for the Reich. Mussolini, (left) assumes a characteristic pose, as he addresses the Italian people on the eve of war. The Chief Executive sent a message to all important powers in Europe on August 24, 1939. A second urgent note was delivered to Hitler alone, on the next day. Exactly one week later, war was declared. The swastika, mark of the Germans, shown at the right of the picture, floats over crushed Paris, with the famed Eiffel tower in the background. The French fought fiercely but accepted an armistice on June 22, 1940. Since that date the war has spread almost entirely over the face of the globe, even affecting the normal life of American citizens, thus carrying out President Roosevelt's prophecy in Chicago, in 1937, that unless present European conditions were remedied, America would eventually have to face the problems arising from acts of aggression.

It was later that I pointed out that the recent systematic violation of treaties, the indiscriminate bombing of civilians, were wiping away the very landmarks of law, order, and justice which had characterized our civilization. I warned that "if those things come to pass in other parts of the world, let no one imagine that America will escape, that America may expect mercy, that this Western hemisphere will not be attacked." I called upon the peace-loving nations to "make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy and instability."

During 1938 there came the Czechoslovakian crisis. On September 26 and September 27, 1938, I sent messages to Hitler and to the heads of the Czechoslovakian, British, and French governments, seeking a peaceful solution of that threat of war. The particular crisis was averted, but, as I stated at the time, "it was (is) becoming increasingly clear that peace by fear had (has) no higher or more enduring quality than peace by the sword."

Conditions Grow Worse.

Three months later, at Lima, Peru, the 21 American republics, including our own, agreed to stand together to defend the independence of each one of us in the Western hemisphere. That declaration at Lima was a further step toward continued peace and common defense in this hemisphere, but it did not have any effect on matters in Europe. In 1939 international affairs in Europe grew steadily worse.

That is why I was so anxious in July, 1939, for the congress to repeal the arms embargo provisions of the neutrality law. For such a repeal would, in effect, say to the aggressor nations that if they did declare war they would find that their enemies would be able to obtain the needed war supplies here in America. I knew that the sale of arms by the United States could and would help the weaker nations resist attack from those nations which had built up these vast offensive striking forces.

The Arms Embargo.

Congress was ready to adjourn in July, 1939, without passing the repeal of the arms embargo. We were convinced that the arms embargo was actually having the effect of hastening the war in Europe by the encouragement which it gave to the aggressor nations. I therefore called a conference at the White House of the Republican and Democratic leaders of the congress to urge upon them further the necessity of the legislation, and to canvass the situation so as to learn whether such congressional action were possible. At that conference I pointed out how the arms embargo was encouraging the outbreak of a general war, how it operated in favor of the aggressor nations of Germany and Italy, and how thoroughly it weakened the position and prestige of the United States as a motivating factor for peace. For we were hardly in a position to urge the aggressor nations to desist from attack, if we could not, under any circumstances, sell merchandise to the threatened democracies of Europe.

GOP Attitude.

It appeared clear at this conference, however, and was so stated by the congressional leaders, that practically all of the Republican members of the congress would vote against repeal, and that about 25 per cent of the Democratic members would. This opposition was based on the belief that there would be no war in Europe before the following January, when the congress would again assemble in regular session, and that, therefore, there was no need for immediate legislation.

Of course, it was useless to insist upon the legislation under those circumstances. It should be borne in mind, however, that the responsibility for this action properly lies with those who refused to repeal the arms embargo in July of 1939. I made it clear to them at the conference that the opponents would have to take the sole responsibility for the results of their opposition. And forthcoming events proved that early legislative action in this matter would have been extremely helpful to the cause.

Vinegar added to dried glue will make it usable again.

To get the best service from felt hats, brush them frequently with a soft brush (not a stiff whisk broom) with the grain of the felt.

Pongee must be dry when ironed. It will spot and streak if ironed when damp.

Half a teaspoonful of soda added to boiling frosting will keep it from being runny.

A serve yourself center piece for the table is a time saver. Gaily decorate a large platter of cold meat, salads and hard cooked eggs, with relishes, buttered bread slices and dabs of jelly or jam.

If your family likes variety, add a little spice to your picnics. A quarter teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves will be enough for each 1½ cups of flour. It is very good with fresh fruit or berry pies.

A leftover hint—Cover a casserole of savory macaroni and cheese, or spaghetti and tomato sauce, with chopped cooked ham blended with a dash of onion. Bake until hot clear through and serve.

Before tubbing a wash silk dress remove all buckles, buttons, bows and loose trimmings and wash them separately. If they're left on the dress they are likely to become damaged or they may tear the dress.

Sliced apples browned in bacon fat, slightly sweetened and spiced make a delicious topping for a browned slice of ham.

Modern streamlined war may have changed the arms and methods of Uncle Sam's soldiers, but it hasn't changed the Army man's smoking preference. For more than 20 years Camels have been the Army man's favorite cigarette. Today, actual sales records show Camels not only are the favorite with men in the Army, but with men in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard as well. With men in the service giving cigarettes first place in the gift line-up, it's natural that local tobacco dealers are featuring "Send a Carton of Camels" as the ideal gift for the service men from the folks back home.—Adv.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Miss Cora M. Robinson of Aurora, Illinois is visiting her niece Miss Mereda Robinson at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

Our first social meeting of the new term was held in the Methodist church social room Friday, September 26. Mrs. Fred Schmiedeknecht was our honored guest of the evening. To the strains of the wedding march, she was escorted to the president's station where she was presented with an "everlasting" corsage of yellow roses and lily-of-the-valley, tied with narrow streamers from the ends of which glistened 50 shining pennies, in honor of her golden wedding anniversary. This was a gift from all the past and the present presidents. Mrs. Schmiedeknecht has been a faithful member, and we wish her many more happy years. After the meeting refreshments were served, the centerpiece being a big cake decorated with "50th Anniversary." On Saturday evening, the members attended the anniversary party at Saenger Hall in a group, and presented the honored couple with a large basket containing 50 yellow gladioli, a gift from the Unit.

Saturday afternoon, the Junior group held their installation of new officers, with Mrs. Frances Rowden as their installing officer. The new Junior officers are as follows: Shirley Mason, Chairman, Lorraine Cupp, vice chairman, Lois Wallin, Secretary, Myrtle Ellen Wolf, Chaplain, Joy Berg, historian, Beverly Berg, Sergeant at arms. Their regular meetings will be held the first Tuesday of every month.

Erna Wallin, Publicity chair.

TINLEY SCHOOL NEWS

Sixty members of the Tinley Park School Glee Club took part in the opening broadcast of the WLS school time radio series directed by Harriet Hester. The Glee Club sang two songs, Good Morning and the Fly, and the Bumble Bee.

This was the first appearance of the newly formed Glee Club which is under the direction of Mrs. Rachel Hesbol. The group is planning several public appearances during the school year. These performances will be given in the school auditorium and will be announced at a later date.

The organization of the staff of the school newspaper has been completed and it is hoped that they will be able to produce their first publication within the next week. Many boys and girls are participating in this activity and indications are that the paper will be a very worthwhile addition to the school. It will carry items of interest about the school and the community as well as some items about what other schools are doing throughout the country.

The merchants are being solicited for advertisements and anyone desiring to insert an advertisement is urged to contact any member of the advertising staff. This newspaper is giving a real business experience to those enrolled in the activity.

Who Is Who On Orland High School Teaching Staff

OLIN WILFRED ELLWOOD

As taxpayers and parents of children in the Orland Park Community High School will be interested in learning just what kind of men and women they are entrusting the education of their children to, a short biographical sketch of the latest addition to the teaching staff is herewith presented.

Olin Wilfred Ellwood, new instructor in Biology, Agriculture, and Farm Mechanics and Athletic coach is a native of Kansas of English-Swedish extraction and an attendant of the Presbyterian church. He is 6 feet tall, weighs about 175 pounds is 39 years old, married and has one child. He received his scholastic training in the Windom Rural High School of Windom, Kansas, his Bachelor of Science degree from McPherson College of McPherson, Kansas and his Master's degree from Northwestern University.

At high school he was prominent in athletics and in various school activities. He was awarded four letters in basketball, four in baseball and one in football and was captain of the basketball team in his junior year and captain of the football team in his senior year. He served as president of the junior class and as vice-president of the Hi-Y Club in his senior year. He also played the character parts in both the junior and senior class plays.

At McPherson College he received his athletic training under "Dutch" Lonberg, Northwestern's famous basketball star and athletic coach. Here he earned 3 letters each in basketball, football and baseball and one in track and was captain of the varsity football team and manager of the basketball team in his senior year. He was awarded the honor "M" blanket for winning 7 or more letters in major college sports and two sweaters, one in football and one in basketball, for earning 3 letters in each of those sports. He was a member of the team that won the Kansas Conference basketball championship in 1923 and received honorable mention on the All Star Kansas basketball team that year. He was also awarded a gold basketball by the McPherson Chamber of Commerce for his work in helping win the state championship. He was a member of the college choral union music club and is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity.

Following his graduation from McPherson, Mr. Ellwood served as principal of the grade school at Windom, Kansas in 1923-24 and from 1924 to 1929 as instructor in Science, Agriculture and Manual Arts and as coach of all competitive sports at Almena High School in Almena, Kansas. During his regime at Almena, the athletic teams coached by him won 3 league titles one county cup and one district cup in basketball and two Northwest Kansas trophies in baseball.

In 1929, Mr. Ellwood accepted a call from the Crane Fund for Widows and Children, which organization maintained a private school known as Childerly, located at Wheeling, Ill. Here he served as principal and as instructor in English, Mathematics and Manual Arts and as Director of Athletics. During the latter part of his connection with the Crane Fund Institution, Mr. Ellwood's work was largely administrative and he has been highly recommended for his sound judgment and conservative handling of the duties of his position.

While in the above connection, Mr. Ellwood continued his studies in the field of education and received his Master's degree from Northwestern University in 1940.

Mr. Ellwood's educational background and his close association with the problems of the high school boy and girl during his years of teaching in the class room, the shop, the athletic field, the Sunday school and as a boy scout executive and leader, have given him an insight and understanding that should make him a valuable addition to our present fine corps of teachers.

In the individual class C. Niemann took high series with 570 and R. Sundling took the high game with a game of 245 which is the high game of our league so far in this season.

There are national weeks of one kind or another being observed in this country nearly every week and this week from October 1st to October 8th the one great institution which has kept America free more than any other—The Newspaper—is observing Newspaper Week.

The founding fathers of America who were very far sighted made the free press one of the cardinal principles of our constitution. All freedom is FREE PUBLICATION.

Human experience sustains the fact that a people without free access to news of what is going on in the intimate neighborhood or the far places of the world cannot perform the duties of an enlightened citizenry and cannot be a free people.

Freedom of the press goes far beyond mere expression of opinion or statement of fact by individuals or by society as a whole. It encompasses everything human beings may freely do.

Without it, we Americans would not be Americans in our historic sense or in the manner most of us desire and deserve to be.

If ever freedom of the press is suppressed in America then America will become a totalitarian nation and all freedom will vanish. Freedom of the press is the bulwark which protects America from a move on the part of government to become ambitious for greedy power and arrogant. In order for America to always remain free the press of the nation must also always remain free.

MOKENA

The Hirsch Tavern basement has been flooded of late every time it rained and upon investigation it was found that a drain tile along Front street was clogged with dirt, burned matches, paper and other refuse. An iron rod was used to force an opening in the tile and then the fire hose was used to blow the tile free of the obstruction.

The Mokena Methodist church Ladies Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Barney Hostert Thursday afternoon, October 9 at 2 p.m. At this meeting plans will be made for the annual bazaar and supper to be held November 6 in the St. John Church parlors.

The chop suey luncheon held last Thursday by the Catholic Woman's Union in the St. Mary's Hall was well attended and the ladies are thankful to all who helped make this affair such a big success.

The village board will hold their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Thomas Homerding who has been a patient in the St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet has been removed to the home of her daughter Mary in Lockport. She is in a serious condition.

The Robert Geuther family expect to move soon into the Henry Yunker dwelling recently vacated by the Paul Meyer family.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooper spent the week end in Kempton, Ill., with the latter's sister, Mrs. Harrison Haley.

The Ladies Aid of the Mokena Methodist church will hold a bakery sale in the Sippel store this Saturday afternoon commencing at 2 pm.

The Quarterly conference was held in the Mokena Methodist church last Friday evening with the District Superintendent, Dr. Skinner presiding.

Mrs. Ida Benson and daughter Carol have returned from Seattle, Washington where they have been for several months. Mrs. Benson was caring for her mother who had suffered a broken arm.

Mrs. Elmer Schoeneck who has been quite ill is improving.

FORD

"6" OR "8"

IN THESE UNUSUAL TIMES we invite you to inspect an unusual new car—new in its beauty, its comfort, its choice of two fine 90 horsepower engines, 6 cylinders or 8.

See it and you sense at once that here is new style that will stay good for years. On a lower, wider chassis, we have designed new long, low, wide and modern lines.

Interior treatment is entirely fresh, distinctive, pleasing. The beauty of this Ford will more than hold its own in any company.

Inside, the car is big—wide across the seats, generous in knee-room, leg-room, elbow-room.

On the road this year you find the "new Ford ride" still further advanced in its softness, quietness, steadiness and all-round comfort.

At the wheel, you will find driving easier than ever. Steering, gear-shifting, action of the big and sure hydraulic brakes have all been made smoother and easier.

In quality, the car is sound to the last detail. Defense requirements have all been met without a single reduction in the basic and lasting goodness of the Ford mechanically. Some new materials have replaced old ones, usually at a greater cost to us, but in every case the new is equal to or better than the old.

If your family needs a new car, go see and drive this Ford. For what it is today and for what it will be through the years ahead, we believe that you will find in it more and better transportation for your money than you have ever found before.

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH Penn. Publishing Co. W.N.U. Service

INSTALLMENT ELEVEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chibougamau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors

The stiff line of Blaise's mouth eased into the shadow of a smile. "Wal, it is not first time woman make two man look like fool. But smart or fool, you are fr'en' of me! I fight for you just de same!"

"That's the talk, you old carcage!" Red clapped Blaise on a thick shoulder.

Finlay went to the tent and shortly returned with his reply to Lise Demarais which he handed to Malone.

It read:

"I trust you and believe in you. That night when they left me in the swamp was pretty bitter. Against my better judgment I had put my faith in you and walked into a trap. It was hard to believe, after that talk of ours, after that moment on the beach before you left, but I had to. Later, the bitterness faded. There had been something too honest about you, too real to have been acting. Now I know that without your knowledge they followed you to the sand beach.

"I cannot meet you until next week. You'll hear from me then. But please don't worry. We'll take care of you. I've just received good news from the railroad. The break is coming soon. Everything will turn out all right. Kinebik has double-crossed Isadore to save his hide and I'm leaving tonight for the head of the lake. Keep a brave heart. You are safe.

"Garrett Finlay."

Finishing reading Red said: "Great stuff, chief! Wish it was true! If Isadore gets hold of this note, what a jolt he'll get!"

"Exactly. I had to consider that possibility so fed him a headache. It would send Tete-Blanche to the head of the lake hunting us while we're making for Matagami. Besides, I've got to keep up her courage."

Having ordered Moise and Michel Wabistan to meet him on his return with news from the old chief, that night Finlay passed Isadore's and spent the next day concealed near the outlet. The following evening the Peterboro slipped into the Quiet Water, the slow moving thoroughfare connecting Waswanipi with the chain of large lakes to the west. Three days paddle away lay Matagami and the Hudson's Bay post.

The murk of a thick July night blanketed forest and water.

"It's made to order for us, Garry!" whispered Red, from the waist of the boat where he sat behind Flame with his Lee-Enfield across his knees while, in the stern, Blaise handled the canoe with a buried paddle.

"Remember the island which splits the river about five miles below here?" returned Garry. "That's where they'll camp. They'll figure that a canoe can't pass them there without being seen or heard. But they didn't count on a night like this."

"If they hear us and shoot do we lie doggo and push through, or—"

"We don't fire unless we have to! I want to pass them without their knowing it. We have to return this way, you know."

"Very good, sergeant! Good luck to us!"

"If they're guarding both channels we've got to pass within yards of them. Have a pineapple handy, Red! Warn us when you throw it so we can flatten."

"I'm hot to toss one into that mob."

"All right! Remember, no firing unless we're caught!"

As they rounded a bend Blaise stopped the boat with a swift thrust of his paddle. In the distance, like a new moon smothered in drift, a yellow smudge stained the blackness.

"They've got a fire!" whispered Finlay. "I don't understand it!"

"We drop close and have a look," returned Blaise.

The canoe moved on and was again checked. "You hear dem?"

"No."

"Singing!" muttered Red. "The damned fools are singing!"

"They're drunk!" whispered Garry.

"They sure are!" returned Malone, inhaling the damp air through his teeth.

"Ah-hah! De Montagnais drink Isadore's whiskey!" grunted Blaise.

"Indians! So Tete-Blanche wins!" Disappointment, like wind off a barren, turned Finlay cold. "Kinebik's won over the Montagnais! Thank God, we didn't bring Lise!"

"This is luck!" whispered Malone. "They're so drunk they've forgotten us."

"We can't be sure. They may have a guard on both shores," warned Garry. "We'll take the right-hand channel, Blaise. What in—"

The sudden scurry of feet and wings as a flock of disturbed shell drake skittered ahead downstream, stopped the boat.

"That cooks our goose!" cursed Red, softly. "They'll know something startled the ducks and will lay for us!"

"Go on, Blaise!" snapped Finlay. "We're in for it, now!"

The canoe was passing the fire. In seconds they'd be clear and lost downstream. Then there was a grating sound as the nose of the Peterboro slid over a sand bar and the canoe came to a dead stop. They were trapped, yards from the shore!

Finlay and Red swiftly traded rifles for poles while Blaise strained to free the boat. One false move and they'd draw a blast of fire. They threw their weight desperately on their poles. There came the low call of "Kekway!" from the murk. The three men stiffened.

Crouched in the gloom the crew of the canoe waited for the crash of rifles in their faces. A silence so deep it beat like sound, pulsed in their ears. Ten—twenty seconds and the men in the bow felt the canoe tremble. Blaise's signal to go! Like one man they strained against their poles. There was the scrape of wood on sand, the low wash of water and the canoe was backed clear.

The nose of the boat had sheered off into deeper water when again, the call of "Kekway!" rose from the invisible shore. The three stopped breathing as the boat drifted. Suddenly there was a movement in the alders and spurts of flame from exploding rifles stabbed the gloom. With a savage thrust Blaise jumped the canoe downstream. The enraged airedale rose under his blanket, but was forced flat. There was a stampede of feet along the shore and full in their faces blazed a barrage of rifle shots.

The canoe grounded and was cleared again while the rifles of the ambushed, but later escapes. They continue to keep it a secret that they are Mounted Police. Sent to investigate the deaths of the six "drowned" men, Finlay believes Lise was innocent and writes her a note.

of the strangers. "I'm Duncan McNab, in charge here, and this is David, my head man."

Finlay introduced himself and his friends. "We passed through the lake some time back, Mr. McNab, on our way in to map Waswanipi."

"Map Waswanipi?" The shrewd blue eyes of the trader pictured his amazement. "You're a government survey party, then?"

"We were," Finlay shot an amused look at Red.

The heavy brows of the trader lifted. "Then you've finished?"

"No, Mr. McNab, we're not on the survey, now, but we haven't finished with Waswanipi." Finlay's face stiffened. "We've come to you for help and information. Then we're going back—to finish."

The clamp of his lean jaw and the points of fire in the speaker's eyes snapped McNab's head forward in a narrow-eyed stare. "I don't get you, Mr. Finlay. Let's talk it out over a pipe in the trade-room. Of course, you'll stay the night with us? We're pretty lonely, here, for a white face. Your men can stow your stuff in that shack. David will show him."

"Thanks," said Finlay. "I'll shut up my dog, too, before there's a fight."

Shortly the three white men sat in the trade-room.

"Now, Mr. Finlay," said McNab, exhaling a cloud of smoke, "would you mind getting down to brass tacks?"

Finlay was measuring the caliber of the man whom circumstances had forced him to trust in order to insure the delivery of his message to the railroad. This trader looked a man full in the eye and had a straightforward way with him. He seemed staunch. According to reports he had been worsted by Isadore in the fight for the fur trade. That was in their favor and should keep his mouth closed. There was nothing to be gained by waiting. "How well do you know Jules Isadore?" Garry suddenly asked.

The veins lifted in McNab's neck and temples as he tore his pipe from his teeth and rasped: "Too damned well!"

Finlay nodded at the grinning Red. "I thought that would be it, Well, Mr. McNab, we're going to tell you a story. It concerns the deaths of six men. First, possibly you'd be interested to look at that." Finlay produced his police badge and handed it to McNab, whose jaws sagged in his surprise. "We're Mounted Police and we're here to have a message relayed to the railroad."

McNab slowly returned the badge. His eyes strayed from the bronzed faces of the Mounties to the lines of their hard bodies filling the wool shirts and whippoor breeches. "Police, eh? I might have known from your eyes and the set of your shoulders. Well! Well! Up on Waswanipi posing as surveyors! So it's Isadore, at last!"

"Yes," said Finlay, "it's Isadore, at last!" Then he described the events of the past weeks while McNab, drawing furiously on his pipe, punctuated the narrative with outraged grunts.

"That's the story, McNab. For the present, not a word, even to your wife. When can you send a canoe to the railroad?"

"We're sending one shortly," he said. "But their firing on you on the Nottaway, then ambushing you, and you supposed to be on the government survey! I can't get over it, Sergeant! Of course I'd heard at the railroad of these reported drownings and had had my suspicions."

"They didn't believe we were on the survey," replied Finlay. Into his gray eyes crept the mist of memory. His voice was rough with pain as he asked: "Did those boys stop here last summer?"

"Yes. Nice boys, too!"

"One was my brother."

"Your brother? Oh, I'm sorry! You didn't say one was your brother when you told of finding their bodies."

"No."

"It's tough, Sergeant Finlay, damned tough! That crook—" McNab stopped his pacing to stand over Garry and shake a thick finger. "Why—why the man's a lunatic—mad as a hermit wolf! He can't get away with this!"

"He's managed to so far."

McNab's face filled with blood as his anger increased. "I've seen a lot—guessed a lot, since the Company sent me here three years ago to try to save the trade on this lake. We learned that Tete-Blanche was bribing our hunters with whiskey to leave us and trade their fur with Isadore. I reported it to the Company and the authorities. His freight was searched at Nottaway but they found nothing. They thought I was trying to hurt him because he was a competitor, and dropped it. I was reprimanded by our District Inspector for bringing charges I couldn't prove. Couldn't prove?" snorted McNab. "I had all the proof in the world."

Dad Expected Memorial To Be a Speaking Likeness

Mrs. Woop had died, and Dad wanted to put up some sort of memorial to her. A stained-glass window in the local church being suggested, Dad agreed, and left all arrangements in the hands of the minister.

At length the window arrived. Dad, unusually excited, set out to view it.

The minister escorted the old chap into the church and, with a flourish, indicated the window, which depicted an angel.

"How do you like it?" said he.

Dad gazed at it thoughtfully.

"No good," he grunted.

"Why, what's your objection?"

"Tain't a bit like my old woman."

Much Was Surrendered In Income Tax Battle And an Absurdity Was Preserved . . . Control Of Movie Interests Has Important Angles.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Don't underestimate anything that can be twisted into a "moral issue" in figuring what will happen politically. It happens so often in our legislatures and in congress and too often in the direction of injustice, that one sometimes wonders why the framers of our Constitution, who seemed to have prepared against most of the other difficulties into which we have run, did not protect us against this!

Latest example is the surrender of the house of representatives to the senate on practically everything of importance in the revenue bill in exchange—for what? A victory on a comparatively unimportant issue, but which could be classified under the "moral" category.

The senate, on the advice of some disinterested tax experts, had provided that when a couple is separated, and the man is paying alimony to his wife, that alimony can be deducted from his total income in computing the tax. Another phase of the provision provided that the alimony should be considered as income by the wife, would have to be reported just as though it were income from investments, or salary, and a tax paid on it if it were sufficiently large after the deductions.

Immediately there was a hue and cry from certain quarters—it was branded in a "handout" sent to all newspaper men in Washington as well as members of congress as "encouraging divorce."

Just how anyone could figure that men and women would break up happy homes in order to save the difference between one bracket and another on part of their income is difficult for the writer to imagine but that is what this "handout" intimated.

It's a Mystery

It happened several years ago, when the writer's attention was directed to this by a friend, that it seemed possible that the original motive underlying this wording of the law (for it is the letter of the law, and not treasury department regulations) would make an interesting article. The writer talked to Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, then chairman of the senate finance committee, which handles all tax legislation, to treasury officials and others. No one could remember what had been behind the original wording. No one defended it.

Certainly no church had ever advocated it. No church in this country forbids separation. It is only against remarriage that the RELIGIOUS objection applies. And it is not the remarried divorced man who is so hard hit. He can claim the full deduction of a married man because he is living with his new wife. He can also claim $400 deduction for his ex-wife as a dependent, believe it or not. She is no longer his wife, and hence does not come within the prohibition in the law.

Yet the house yielded on nearly everything else in controversy, in order to preserve this absurdity!

Small Group Controls U. S. Movie Interests

The weakness of the movie interests under attack by isolationist senators is not due to their being guilty of the charge of making pro-war propaganda, pictures—assuming for the sake of argument that they are guilty—but because it is so easy to show that a small group of men has the power to say what films shall be shown the American public.

If it were not for this—if it were not for the well-known fact that an independent theater owner has no chance to buck any one of the big movie interests—the charge that a small group of producers, "animated by the persecutions and hatreds of the Old world," is injecting pro-war propaganda into American films, on which Senators Gerald P. Nye and Bennett Clark rely, would be merely a laugh to the country.

Seriously, on this point, does any one really believe that the big movie producers would turn out propaganda films if they lost money on them—if they were sure in advance that they would lose money?

John T. Flynn, in his argument before the committee against the movie producers, provided food for thought along this line. He attached the "glorification" of the affair between Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton in "That Hamilton Woman." Several comments could be made on that. In the first place many people who pay admissions to movies love to see any film which revolves around an illicit love affair between any bygone persons of sufficient importance. There may have been such a movie which did not yield a fat profit to its producers and the individual theater owners, but if so it has escaped the notice of this writer. And one doubts whether John T. Flynn could remember it.
